What Well Dressed Women are Wearing in Millinery

No one can complain that Fall Millinery Models are not interesting. No one can despair because they are "hard to wear," unbecoming, save to certain types of women. No one can bewail the new "chapeaux" as "too extreme."

Just as in the case with costumes, the new hats, show the widest variety of shape and trimming. The milliners announced most emphatically that the season will not be a large hat season. And in the next breath they assure one that the small hat will not lead.

One of the foremost milliners aptly described the Chapeau tendency, the other day in saying, "The smartest shape a woman can select is the shape that is most becoming to her."

One of the Chapeau novelties is an adaptation of an English coachman's hat of velvet with large buckle in gray; other models in purple and black velvets stitched with long haired wool, smart tri-corners and close turbans, trimmed in cut steel and beads.

A NUMBER OF NOVELTY HATS JUST ARRIVED AND WILL BE SHOWN ON THE STAGE AT THE FASHION SHOW ON LIVING MODELS

Here is cause for gratitude. At the same time the seekers of novelty can find some distinctly new, decidedly originals at Korrick's. Plenty in both large and small shapes. And here again is cause for gratitude. It has been many seasons since one could wear what one liked in millinery; what was most becoming to one, without first giving thought to the prevailing mode.

Women are greatly interested in Korrick's showing of Dress Goods

The spirit of winter time and individualism in Dress Goods that pervades our Dress Goods Department is contagious.

There's a world of significance in the increased sales of fabrics for fall and winter, as compared with those of last year. Individual purchases have been no larger—but there have been more of them. Sales records prove that what we have said from time to time, regarding the renewed interest of individualism in stylish apparel, in preference to commonplace, commercial creations—is true.

Benefit now by becoming familiar with the new, winter weaves and colorings—by getting acquainted with our store; by knowing our way of doing business; by profiting by our experienced dress goods salesman's suggestions; our ideas of service—dress satisfaction and economy.

LET OUR EXPERIENCED SALESMEN SHOW YOU THE WOOLENS FOR WINTER WEAR

Whether you are ready to buy now or not makes no difference. It will be a pleasure to show you the goods and you will take a keen delight in examining them.

There is an almost unlimited variety of French serges, whipcords, poplins, mixtures, novelty weaves and the beautiful velvets used so extensively for dresses.

Exposition of Fashionable Silks

Consisting of an enormous collection of foreign and domestic silks with a faultless expression of style and a high degree of quality.

You have never seen another display like it, for the merits and incentives of quality, style and prices were never so thoroughly combined. For months we have been preparing because we knew that this was to be the greatest silk season in a decade; and we were determined to have a showing which would stamp Korrick's as one of the foremost silk stores of the southwest. We have never attempted such great showings before—neither has any other house.

IT IS NOT ONLY UNPARALLELED—BUT UNPRECEDENTED

Nothing good that season has brought forth lacks ample representation. It is a vast, imposing, fascinating, satisfying, exhaustive assemblage of the season's richest and most wanted silks. Everything that silk art has conceived and skill produced for the adornment of women is embraced, meeting the exact individual wish of every woman.
